

Testimonial from Dejan Ristic:

We engaged Steven Whitfield to build our retirement home. My wife Mare, has a flair for whimsy and when an opportunity popped up to design a small (not to be confused with 'simple') house, she let the creative juices flow. Her criteria were: make small seem big; include a tower; have open interior sightlines; rooms and areas need to flow to and from each other. From her perspective an architect's drawings were for 'first draft' use only... And that is where Steven (the magician) and Ron (his sorcerer's apprentice) come into the picture. Steven's was not the least expensive quote, but his estimates ended up being bang on and supported by documentation and regular billing information. The design was tweaked during construction by Steven to meet the requirements and to make up for discrepancies in 'AutoCAD'. He was creative in achieving all the 'on-the-fly' changes that we made. There were some tough challenges in means and materials and for all situations, Steven, and his team, researched materials, provided options at varying price ranges. When needed he was not afraid to commit to a single recommendation. Steven is very easy going, readily available, open to dialogue and genuinely empathizes with his clients. Within the constraints of timeliness and budget restraints, he provided us with the best options and in the end the best of all possible outcomes. Even after his involvement was over he made it a point to regularly follow-up to see if there were any issues that he might be able to help out on. I highly recommend Steven as a professional with humanity and humility, who creatively gets the job done.
